Overview of the Programme

Globalization, changing demographics and technological advancements are some of the key driving forces of the future. Our students will have to be prepared to face these challenges and seize the opportunities brought about by these forces. In 21st century learning, students use educational technologies to apply knowledge to new situations, analyze information, collaborate, solve problems, take risk and make decisions. So the education should be structured as outcome based which developed certain critical core competencies such as collaboration, digital literacy, critical thinking, and problem-solving, self-learning, etc. It should be interdisciplinary, project-based, and research-driven and connected to the community – local, state, national and global. Thus, the responsibility of a technical institute is to create and sustain a community of learning in which students acquire knowledge and learn to apply it professionally with due consideration for ethical, ecological, and economic issues. In short, providing knowledge-based technological services, and building national capabilities in science, technology, humanities, management, education and research to satisfy the needs of society and the industry are equally important and demanding.

The objectives of the programme

On successful completion of this course and given the necessary institutional encouragement and support, the participants will be able to undertake and complete the following tasks at reasonable levels of proficiency that may be expected at first attempts:

- Identify and write down appropriate outcome based course, module and unit objectives of her / his courses based on Bloom's Taxonomy
- Develop / select appropriate test items for all outcome based objectives for both Summative and Formative evaluation.

- Plan an outcome-based curriculum document to meet NBA and Washington Accord requirements.
